

Welcome!

Thank you for worshipping with us!
We are not complete without you!

The apostles gathered together with Jesus and reported all they had done and taught.

He said to them,

“Come away by yourselves to a deserted place and rest a while.” Mk. 6:30-31

Maybe you grew up Catholic
Maybe you think of yourself as Catholic
Maybe you haven't been to church in awhile.
Or you are worried that you won't be welcomed here.
And maybe it feels awkward and scary
to take that first step.. Questions.
Doubts. Yearning. But not sure for what. We get it.
We've been there.
Now we are here.

Maybe God is calling you, too.
Just as you are.
Welcome home.

Slander and Gossip

Ephesians 4:29

Let no unwholesome word proceed from your mouth, but only such a word as is good for edification according to the need of the moment,
so that it will give grace to those who hear.

Proverbs 20:19

He who goes about as a slanderer reveals secrets,
Therefore do not associate with a gossip.

Psalms 34:13

Keep your tongue from evil
And your lips from speaking deceit.

Proverbs 21:23

He who guards his mouth and his tongue,
Guards his soul from troubles.

Proverbs 16:28

A perverse man spreads strife,
And a slanderer separates intimate friends.

Proverbs 26:20

For lack of wood the fire goes out,
And where there is no whisperer, contention quiets down.

James 1:26

If anyone thinks himself to be religious, and yet does not bridle his tongue but deceives his own heart, this man's religion is worthless.

Proverbs 17:9

He who conceals a transgression seeks love,
But he who repeats a matter separates intimate friends.

Psalms 101:5

Whoever secretly slanders his neighbor,
him I will destroy;
No one who has a haughty look
and an arrogant heart will I endure.

Invite Someone to Mass

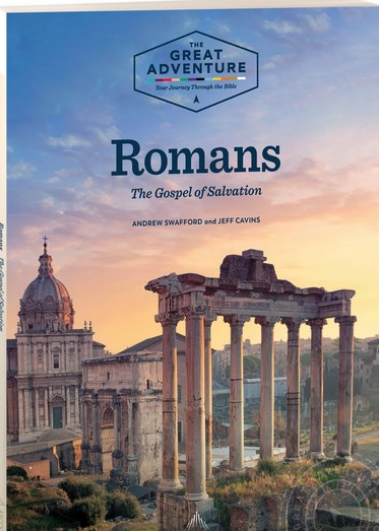

The church is again open for quiet prayer during the day.
It is open from 7am until 7pm daily.

Our daily Mass is at 8 am Monday-Saturday with the rosary prayed immediately afterward.

Now is a good time to help others attend Mass and receive the Eucharist; the true body and blood of Christ hidden in the form of a host. Many persons are Interested in attending, but may lack transportation. If you know of someone like this, please offer them a ride so that they can again be nourished and strengthened in their faith.

For those unable to attend Mass, please assist them in setting up their computer or iPad or phone to view the Mass that's posted online daily by 9:30 am.
Reach out to those who have been away, and check on their well being. God Bless!

Respect Life Ministry

Your help is urgently needed to stop mail order abortion!

Sign the petition to stop the FDA from removing health and safety standards required for the distribution of the dangerous Chemical Abortion Pills aka RU486. Before these pills are prescribed, women are required to visit a doctor to determine gestational age and rule out ectopic pregnancy. Lifting standards would endanger not only the life of the preborn baby but also the woman's life and allow her to purchase by mail without a doctor's exam. Go to ThisIsChemicalAbortion.com to sign and watch a short 5-part docuseries.

Wendy Bell, Director

Dear Friends and Families of Saint James,

Our registration for the 2021-2022 school year is open on the Religious Education page of the parish website, SaintJames.Church/RE. The website is also where you can find the weekly Faith @ Home resource, which is based upon the Sunday Scriptures we hear at Mass, as well as the Partners in Faith summer calendar of family activities. We hope these resources help you as you raise children of faith.

As we look to next fall, we also seek new Catechists. Pope Francis said in a homily in 2013, “Who are catechists? They are people who keep the memory of God alive; they keep it alive in themselves and they are able to revive it in others. This is something beautiful: to remember God...”

If you feel called to this formal role of sharing our faith with others as a memory keeper of God, please contact the Office of Religious Education at 310.379.3221 or email us at religioused@stjamesparish.org.

The Religious Education Program has Catechists who serve in many areas, including in our Religious Education classes, our Sunday School program, and our Children’s Liturgy of the Word program.

Our community needs your gifts. Please consider how the Holy Spirit is calling you to serve our parish during the coming school year.

The Office of Religious Education is now closed until August 15, but we will be checking emails and phone messages once a week. Please reach out if you have questions about registration or becoming a Catechist, and we will be in touch.

Have a great summer, and God bless!

Andrea Sullivan,
Director of Religious Education

Q: At a recent 8AM Monday Mass, Father Thaddeus gave the gathered congregants a measure of spiritual food for thought. What was that message of divine grace?

A: The message was a reminder essentially about "debts of gratitude." He talked about our bodies being temples of the Holy Spirit, a gift from God that glorifies God. Then, Father put it in succinct terms, "We should appreciate God."

Those pastoral promptings about increased devotion and better appreciation of the Lord echo the comments of Pope Francis who points out that the very word "Eucharist" derives from the Greek for "thanksgiving." The Holy Father:

"The Catechism says that every event and need can become an offering of thanksgiving. When you thank someone you express the certainty that you are loved. If we view life like this, then "thank you" becomes the driving force of our day."

The St. James Choir sings a beautiful selection by Henry Smith, based on a venerable 17th Century Baroque canon, (a work of music characterized by imitation and repetition), by Johann Pachelbel, entitled Give Thanks. With a meditative tempo, this song celebrates the never-ceasing thanks of a grateful heart. It prompts us, even within a brief eighth rest, ("Let the poor say I am rich, [7rest 7], because of what the Lord has done...") to internalize an inspirational thankfulness to God. Even the briefest moments, (like an eighth note's short moment of silent rest), can be worthy moments of thankfulness and praise.

Perhaps we can imitate that long ago thankful soul who came back from among the ten lepers to offer thanks. We wake up each day, grateful for the day. We offer thanks for a flower, a recovery from illness, a reconciliation, scriptural miracles, a reading, a Mass, or maybe a sunset.

This week's readings give us Psalm 27:
"I will give to the Lord the thanks due his righteousness, and sing praise to the name of the Lord, the Most High."

Giving thanks. The driving force of our day...

The Healing Grace of Sacramental Confession

"It's been a long time since you've been to confession," Fr. Vianney said, shaking his hand. "My good Father," the man said, "it's something like thirty years, I think."

"Thirty years, my friend?" the saint replied. "Think again. Thirty-three years ago, you were in such a place!" The man admitted that this was true. "Then," the priest said, "we are ready for confession now, aren't we?"

Overcome with repentance, the man humbly made his confession. Afterward, he immediately experienced what he called an "indefinable sense of well-being."

The Battle for Souls

More than two centuries later, his words ring true in my own life. Every time I leave the confessional, I feel that same "indefinable sense of well-being." The lightness I feel after receiving the sacrament of reconciliation makes me feel like I'm walking on air.

On the other hand, before I go to confession, it often feels like the opposite of walking on air. The weight of a ton of bricks presses on my shoulders. Everything in my life feels too hard, too much, too heavy. I know I should go to confession, but I don't feel like going. I don't have the strength, the energy, the stamina I need in order to get there.

In the world of spiritual warfare, this is oppression—and when I recognize it, I know I must fight it. The enemy prowls about the world seeking the ruin of souls, as the St. Michael prayer says, and he certainly does not want me going to confession. If I remember to invoke St. Michael's intercession, the archangel will give me the heavenly protection I need in order to make it to confession.

It makes sense, of course, that the enemy would want to keep souls away from the confessional. After all, as Patti Maguire Armstrong wrote in an excellent article about things she learned from exorcists, "Confession is more powerful than exorcism. One confession is worth 100 exorcisms. ...If people want to decrease the work of Satan, they should increase the use of confession."

The battle in which I find myself before going to confession is a battle for my soul. No wonder so many people stay away from confession for so long: They are in the grip of a powerful force pulling them in the opposite direction!

But the power of the sacrament is stronger and will never be vanquished. "The light shines in the darkness," St. John the Evangelist tells us, "and the darkness has not overcome it" (John 1:5).

When Souls Need Extra Help

The Lord sends holy priests, such as St. Pio and St. John Vianney, to bring people back to the sacrament. If the Holy Spirit grants them words of knowledge, it is for the good of the souls to whom they minister.

Frequent and Sincere Confession

The gift of reading souls is fascinating, but it is the sacrament itself that unites us with the God who made us. Whether or not a priest has a mystical knowledge of souls, the actual grace of the sacrament is the real prize.

Though these stories intrigue me, I have never had such a thing happen to me, and I think most people would say the same. The standard confession does not involve the reading of souls. Yet the power of the sacrament is in no way lessened by its ordinariness. I feel its supernatural strength just the same. When the priest says the prayer of absolution—"God, the Father of mercies..."—I close my eyes and rest in its beauty; the words wash over me, and I feel the Living Water restoring my weary, tired, thirsty soul.

How generously Our Lord lavishes us with graces in the sacrament of reconciliation! He calls us back to Himself, gives us a fresh slate, and washes us clean. He dispels the spirits that attack us, the temptations that assail us. He gives us "an indefinable sense of well-being."

St. John Bosco once had a vision in which he was able to see the state of the souls of the boys whom he taught. As told in Peter Lappin's book Stories of Don Bosco, the saint summed up the vision's most important message—and the antidote to the many sins that threatened his boys—in these words:

"The motto I give you is this: Frequent and sincere confession; frequent and devout Communion."

What holds us back?

May God grant us the grace to partake frequently and sincerely of the sacrament of reconciliation, where the Divine Physician waits to heal the brokenness of every precious soul who comes to meet Him there.

Confession 4-5 pm every Saturday in the Church Parking lot.

Gospel Meditation

There's an ordinary pine grove located on a tree farm not too far from town where life's stresses and demands seem to melt away.

It is here that all that seemed so important out there no longer is and one can get lost in the rows of trees and majestic beauty. God is here and all is good.

We need to connect with the Divine Source of all that is in order to understand what it is we are doing and why we are doing it. Otherwise, things stop making sense and bitterness can overcome one's spirit.

It's okay to play once in a while and to discover that place of profound life and peace. People always have needs and there is constantly something to do. And while all of that is necessary and we are needed, there is also that inner solitude within that needs to be celebrated and released.

We all need a pine grove. It's that little place we can go and leave all that consumes us behind. It's a place where technology can be set aside and wonder, and awe given some time. We don't have to text, calculate, or orchestrate anything in the pine grove. It is a somewhat deserted place where all of that can be set aside and we can just be. The anger, frustration, exhaustion, discouragement, helplessness, and occasional apathy, all can fall to the ground like all of those pine needles that once held their place on the branch of a Frasier Fir.

The needles can let go. We can let go. We are beings connected with Being and we all need to remember what really matters, who really matters and what life is truly all about. We need to find that place where we can rest and let go of all of the barnacles we accumulate. Rest, breathe, seek, and love.

The world will need us again when we leave the pine grove. It will all be waiting for us, beckoning for our attention. But we will have prayed and will have marveled at the silence and the beauty of goodness. We can go back, ready, and eager to listen, to help, to heal, to cry, to embrace, and attend to all that is asked of us. But, having let go of the distractions in that deserted place we will have a renewed sense of purpose. We will know better Who it is we serve and what we are meant to do. It will all be clearer now that we have been Divinely touched and refreshed.
